Darmstadt, Germany, 4 February 2026 – speedikon FM is reaffirming its commitment to art and culture in the Hessian Bergstraße region by supporting the exhibition of artist Harm Gerdes at the Kunsthalle Darmstadt. With this initiative, the software company emphasizes its ambition to foster creative talent from the region and to actively contribute to cultural development.

Born and raised in Darmstadt, Harm Gerdes is regarded as one of the distinctive contemporary artists working in abstract painting. His artistic identity is closely tied to the city, particularly to the Mathildenhöhe, whose distinctive forms, patterns and ornamental visual language repeatedly appear as points of reference in his work. Although Gerdes now exhibits internationally and maintains his studio in Athens, Darmstadt remains a central point of reference in his artistic practice. His exhibition can be seen at the Kunsthalle Darmstadt until 15 March.

“As a company with strong roots in Darmstadt, we see it as our responsibility to support both emerging and established artists from the region,” says Adrian Merkel, CEO of speedikon FM. “Harm Gerdes combines Darmstadt’s artistic heritage with a contemporary, international visual language. This blend of origin, innovation and clarity strongly resonates with us and reflects our own approach to sustainable development and future readiness.”

By sponsoring the exhibition, speedikon FM is deliberately demonstrating its commitment to social responsibility beyond its core business. Art and culture play an important role in engaging with change, complexity and new perspectives - topics that are equally central to speedikon FM’s work in the digital and technological world.
